INDEPENDENT STUDY PROPOSAL

Clinical Psychology - Part 1

Students: Emma Elkin

Teacher: Ms. Sherry Mohr

Semester: Fall 2023

The PURPOSE of this independent study is to provide students with an opportunity to study an academic area which they hope to further pursue in college. This course will be an "upper level" course that goes beyond the basic content of Sociology and Film & Society. The course will also strive to prepare the student for successful study of related courses at the college level.

Some of the TOPICS covered in this course will include psychological disorders, including their diagnoses, symptoms, causes, treatments, effects on functioning, and related issues, and case studies of individuals with mental illnesses. There will be a research focus in the course, as well as the opportunity to apply concepts.

Under most circumstances, the independent study participants may provide input regarding the topics covered in the course, which allows the opportunity to cover information that particularly interests them.

ASSESSMENT will be accomplished through both written and oral evaluations, written assignments, and hands-on/real world assignments. Students will be required to complete reading responses, case study analyses, video responses, research summaries, and a final research paper.

Students who do not attend scheduled meetings, do not complete assignments, or if they demonstrate a poor attitude or a lack of effort, they will lose points and may also lose the privilege of having an independent study.

The GRADING SCALE for this class is the standard high school grading scale:

93-100%	A
85-92%	B
77-84%	C
70-76%	D
0-69%	F

Students who successfully complete this independent study will receive .5 Social Studies CREDIT (semester course).

The TEXTBOOK to be used for this independent study will be the following:

Durand, V.M. & Barlow, D.H. (2013). Essentials of abnormal psychology. New York: Wadsworth/Cengage Learning.

Other MATERIALS/RESOURCES will include websites, videos, books, and sociology and social science textbooks. Students will also have an online course on Schoology where she can access and submit assignments.

The MEETING TIME for this independent study will be weekly during Hornet Lunch or during another agreed upon time. Online communication will also be utilized.
